Avera™ . 820 range

Spacious. Comfortable. Full of contrasts.

What could be more relaxing than the curved, plywood chairs, benches and stools from the Avera range? The contours of the spacious, three-dimensional plywood side panels and backrests are appealing and the gentle curve of the soft-looking upholstery simply invites you to take a seat. The upholstered body is supported by stylish, die-cast aluminium legs, attached at the rear and sides to the plywood shell. They lend Avera a light touch and offer practical features, such as flexible and adjustable glides to compensate for floors that are not totally even.

Avera scores top marks in both form and function. The pleasantly firm and ergonomically shaped upholstery allows you to adopt a number of different positions. The top edge of the backrest is also a convenient place to lean on during informal discussions. If the two or three-seater is used as a couch, the armrests are also a comfortable neck support and place to rest your feet.

Avera's informal, classy design is reflected in the chair's materials and craftsmanship. The multi-layer upholstery, hand-sewn covers made of excellent and superbly soft leather, or high-quality fabrics, solid beech frame and expertly made plywood shells combine supreme sophistication with durability. Square, or rectangular, matching low tables finish off the range. You can choose from veneered laminboard tabletops with reinforced safety glass and an etched underside, or granite.

seat and back with leather upholstery, bright, chromium-plated aluminium frame

Quite a feature in reception areas; even the three-seater couch requires no extra support and so floors are easier to clean. A tranquil atmosphere is created, marked by comfort and relaxation that appears to be just a matter of course.

Strong contours – soft lines. The precision-made upholstery and covers make Avera an elegant and informal eye-catcher. The backrests and side panels veneered on the outside, with totally upholstered and covered plywood shells, are alternatives for a more informal look.

Combined with the stool, the seat becomes a lounge chair that is ideal for reading and daydreaming.
